

To FCC:

I am totally opposed to the passage of docket # 02-277, which removes the restrictions on the number of radio and TV stations that one entity can own. In my opinion, over the years, the quality of radio broadcasting including the variety and diversity of programming has diminished. I believe this is due to an increasing number of stations owned by fewer owners. Smaller operators are and will continue to be driven out of the market (just look at Starbucks as an analogy). The dissemination of information will become even more biased than it is today. I would hate for an organization, such as Clear Communications, to hold any more power than they already have. Thank you.

Doug Honeyman